Walpole says goodbye to Local Legend

You may or may not have been aware that John had been unwell in recent times.

John lived his life to the fullest, forever striving to achieve recognition and acknowledgement of the pristine Walpole area, in a myriad of facets.

So many points documented in John's Australia - the Clean Country of 2016 have come to fruition.

He took his leave like the considerate gentleman he was, peacefully, still with many plans, on the afternoon of November 13th, with daughters Lotte and Jenny singing songs of times gone by.

John used to ride his bicycle collecting litter and pulling noxious weeds along North Walpole Road and Highway 1. When it was late at night and he found himself nearer to Manjimup than Walpole, John Hughes, then owner of Rest Point Caravan Park would drive to collect him and bring him home to Walpole.

Walpole will do its best to honour John's mission to attain the long term goal of Walpole becoming a World Heritage area. Litter Free Walpole exists in the world because of John's passion, meticulous care and your support.

May his legacy continue.

~Jenny Willcox

Letter from John's daughter, Lotte

Thank you, Papa, for your eternal optimism and encouragement. Thank you for capturing Mama's heart and gifting her two happy, healthy daughters to join our sister Helen. Thank you for giving Jenny and I the freedom to be wilderness children; first exploring our early childhood home in Redcliffe and along the Swan River; then the home of our hearts, the Walpole Wilderness and finally encouraging us to explore the world. "Safety First" you told us and we listened. "Strength. Perseverance. Patience. Wisdom" and we're still striving to achieve those goals.

One of my happiest memories is a marroning trip up the Deep River. We paddled our ancient orange and blue inflatable boat¹ a kilometre up the river to our favourite isolated spot. Mama and you taught us to set our nets with chook pellets in an old stocking and a drop of whale oil² to attract the monsters that we knew were hiding under the fallen logs.

After the string of nets was set, we cooled off in the hot summer sun, jumping naked off the granite boulders into the deep cool water, splashing so much, swallowing so much beautiful river water, that we were sure all the marron would have fled.

Then, "the youngest always goes first", so Jenny balanced her way out on a giant log, 3 metres above the water. Quietly, so the log wouldn't vibrate and give us away. Snatch! Up came the net! Jenny could barely lift it! The biggest marron you've ever seen and so heavy that it almost pulled Jenny back off the log! The tail flicked and the marron leapt, but Jenny had that line taut and when the net was sitting on top of the log she pounced and grabbed that monster from behind! No berries³, so into the hessian bag!

Never again did we catch a marron bigger than that first one caught by Jenny.

With our haul safely secured in the bottom of the boat, we paddled back down stream, scraping over every hidden boulder and running aground on every snag. Surely, winter would be a better time to attempt to paddle that river! Pfffffttttttt!!!!!!

Bubbles everywhere! Water in the bottom of the boat! Listing to the side! Grab the bag with the marron! And all four of us into the drink, as one tube of the boat deflated in mere seconds! Scrabbling to the nearest sloping rock, only to find slippery algae providing nothing to hold on to. Finally, wedging the boat and drenched passengers between a rock and a hard place. Of course, this was just a challenge! A bit of rope tied everything back onto the remaining floating sausage and we all swam our way around endless bends until we finally made it back to the rapids from which we had launched!

Jenny and I have never had such a fun time! I'm sure Mama rejoiced at our happiness, despite her wet clothes and boots.

We love you Papa and we know you will be with us for every adventure that lies in store for both of us and for your grandchildren Bryn, Zamia and Appin. And we know your own adventure will continue into the infinite.

From Gravicles you came.
To Gravicles you return.
Long live your Gravicles.
Amen.

¹ using boats for marroning was still permitted during those early days

² bought from Whale World in the early 1990's

Sincere sympathy to Lotte and Jenny and family on the recent sad passing of John, whom I was privileged to call my friend for the last 30 years. We had a wonderful catchup in person recently.

It was an honour to work with him in support of his many visionary initiatives.

Safe and Smart Online Shopping: Your Guide to Navigating the Digital Marketplace

You work hard for your money, and we all know that there are always folks out there trying to trick you out of it, especially online. But don't worry, with these straightforward tips, you can shop online safely and smartly. Remember, I'm always here to help you out every Thursday at the CRC, just give us a call at 9840 1395 and ask for Regan.

Choosing Where to Shop

Stick to Trusted Websites: Start with websites you know and trust. Big names like Amazon or your local retailers are usually a safe bet. Look for a secure connection - that's the 'https' in the web address and a little padlock icon.

Making the Most of Your Money

Compare and Save: Use price comparison sites to check where you can get the best deal - and don't forget to hunt for coupons. Websites like RetailMeNot can offer great discounts.

Read Before You Buy: Always check out customer reviews. They're like getting advice from a bunch of friends about whether a product is worth your hard-earned cash.

Staying Safe with Your Transactions

Secure Payments are a Must: Always use safe payment methods like credit cards or PayPal. And know the return policy - it's your safety net if something goes wrong.

Keep Track of Your Purchases: Save those confirmation emails and receipts. They're your proof of purchase and super handy if you need to return something or spot a weird charge on your account.

Spotting and Avoiding Traps

If It's Too Good to Be True...: Watch out for crazy bargains. They can be a sign of scams or fake goods.

Personal Info - Keep It Safe: Never give out more info than you need to. A legit shopping site won't ask for your whole life story.

A Few More Tips to Shop Like a Pro

Secret Tip - Incognito Mode: Did you know some sites show higher prices based on your browsing?

Shop in incognito mode for possibly lower prices.

Check Your Bank Statements: Keep an eye on your account for any charges you don't recognise. Better safe than sorry.

Wrapping It Up

Online shopping should be easy and safe, not something that makes you worry. With these tips, you're all set to make smart choices, get great deals, and keep your personal and financial information secure. And hey, if you've got any questions or just want to chat about tech, drop by the CRC on a Thursday - I'm here to help!

Blue-swimmer crabs are one of the most popular species caught by recreational fishers in Western Australia

They are a staple of WA summer and a favourite on the Christmas lunch table.

Blue swimmer crab season reopens for 2023 on December 1st in Perth and WA's southwest coast.

This applies to Walpole.

Crabbing out of season carries a fine of $5,000 and a few years ago local people were in fact fined this amount.

Nature Notes: Little Shearwater

The little shearwater is a type of sea bird, its binomial name is Puffinus assimilis. Despite its scientific name, it is unrelated to puffins but is more closely related to the petrel family. It got this name because both these birds nest in burrows. Shearwaters are so-named because of their shearing flight; they fly with wings outstretched close to the water. Colouration changes as dark upperparts and white underparts alternate in flight.

The little shearwater is a gregarious species of bird and many can be seen in Autumn when they migrate. These birds are silent at sea but nest in large colonies which are full of its cackling calls at night. Its main food is fish and molluscs; they will dive to collect food. They have tubes on their beaks and a hook at the end, these tubes are said to assist with finding prey and migration but may also play a part in getting rid of salt. This bird is 25-30 cms long with a wing span of 58-67 cms. In flight, shearwaters resemble the shape of a cross. This bird produces only one egg per year, about 51x35mms in size and both parents attend the nest. The egg is incubated between 52 and 58 days.

Colonies typically nest on islands off the southwest coast of Western Australia. They nest in cracks in the rocks or in cavities located in grassy fields. Nests are concealed in burrows to prevent predators eating the egg. They also prefer moonless nights for nest making. In Australia and New Zealand these birds have been hunted by people in a practice known as Mutton Birding. However their conservation status is still considered to be of least concern by the International Union for the Conservation of Nature.

Most shearwaters, including little shearwaters, migrate for long distances from the North Pacific Ocean of Alaska to islands off Australia. That's a distance of 16,000kms in less than three weeks. Incredible! Some types will not fly over land and even go around by longer routes to avoid this. Little shearwaters are also long-lived, with one bird reported to be 55 years old.

Walpole Primary School launches Sustainability Committee to spearhead waste minimisation efforts

In a bid to bolster waste minimisation and sustainability practices, Walpole Primary School has announced the formation of a dedicated Sustainability Committee. Comprising students, staff, parents, and community members, the new committee aims to drive positive change within the school and its surrounding community.

The school is looking to support responsible waste management and use of resources by building upon existing initiatives, such as utilising food scraps to nourish resident worms and chickens and recycling stations catering to specific materials like bread tags.

Walpole Primary School serves as the designated Containers for Change depot for the Walpole area, playing a pivotal role in the community's recycling efforts. This initiative not only promotes environmental consciousness but also highlights the school's commitment to being an active participant in local sustainability endeavours.

The school's recent recommitment to WasteSorted Schools reflects its dedication to advancing waste minimisation projects. By partnering with this organisation, Walpole Primary School gains access to a wealth of resources and expertise to enhance its sustainability practices further.

The committee's mission will not only support the education of students about the importance of sustainability but also involve the entire school community in taking proactive steps towards a more eco-friendly lifestyle. The new committee will lay the groundwork for a holistic approach to environmental education by engaging various stakeholders.

Expressions of interest are being sought from parents and community members who are eager to support the committee's mission.

For more information on how to get involved, please get in touch with Stuart.Klose@education.wa.edu.au or phone 6871 0200

Shut the door on real estate and rental scammers

Buying or renting a residential property involves significant financial transactions which, increasingly, are targets for scammers.

Over the last year, WA ScamNet received 129 complaints of real estate and rental scams that left 74 West Australians almost one million dollars, in total, out of pocket.

Rental and real estate scammers try to trick you out of your money when you need to transfer payments or make deposits to banks, real estate and settlement agents or landlords.

Real estate scammers often impersonate businesses, such as a settlement agent or bank, by using an email address similar to the real one. They can redirect your payments into their fraudulent accounts by persuading you to download software that gives them access to your computer, or by obtaining a one-time bank verification code from you, enabling your payment to be 're-directed' - to the scammer.

Rental scammers often advertise scam properties on Gumtree or Facebook that feature appealing property photographs. They give you an address to drive by the property, but make excuses about why you can't go inside for an inspection. They then ask you for a bond or rent payment upfront, when that advertised property might already be rented, up for sale, or not even exist.

Retrieving your money paid to fraudulent accounts is difficult, so stay alert to prevent being scammed. If you're buying property, never provide a verification code for your bank account to someone over the phone, always call your settlement agent or bank to confirm details before transferring or paying money, and never give anyone remote access to your computer.

You can outsmart rental scammers by dealing only with landlords or licenced real estate property managers who you can meet in-person, inspecting properties before signing any agreements or paying any money, and requiring a copy of the signed lease agreement, and the property's keys, in exchange for any money you agree to pay.

If you suspect a real estate or rental scam, let WA ScamNet know by calling 1300 30 40 54 or via the website at www.scamnet.wa.gov.au, where you can also sign up for alerts to keep informed about current scams.

If you've suffered financial loss from a scam, be vigilant for 'follow up' scams where scammers pretend to be online investigators wanting to retrieve your stolen money for a fee.

Although the weather was a little challenging, with grey skies and dampness in the air, on Wednesday 15th November at the Walpole Country Club Bowls, the Open Men's Triples was a great success. There was an almost full green, with teams representing many different clubs. The afternoon tea was extensive and very much enjoyed.

The Walpole Country Club Bowls has many helpers who make these events successful. There are the helpers behind the bar and in the kitchen. The ladies and John Stone.

The third-placed team was from Albany Bowling club - Andy Coucher, Ron Connel, and Kim

who do extra cooking at home and the captain, David Tapley, who runs the games. There are also the sponsors; Rest Point was the major sponsor, however there are others. The Walpole Hotel-Motel donated the meat tray for the raffle - this was a good fundraiser and was won by

Thompson. Second came a team from Walpole; it included Ken James, Ray Anderton and Fred Vivian. The winners were from Emu Point, they were Ken Loft, Kelvin Crosby

Our men's pennant team had a good win last Saturday. I hope this success continues. Ladies, we were not able to make up a pennant team this year because we are short of lady bowlers. This could be the sport for you.
